

HOTEL FABRIC // PARIS

24 April, 2017

If after my previous post you are still thinking where to stay in Paris, I've got another option for you. Hotel Fabric (sister of Hotel Monge) is located on Upper Marais and is very convenient of those who want to stay on La Rive Droite (the Right Bank). When in Paris, of course you'd like to spend some time in Le Marais, either for shopping, or for food (and evening drinks). One of my must-visit places was Mercier, which was literally 10 min slow walk from the hotel, and I couldn't be happier.

I loved every single detail at Fabric, starting with fresh welcoming bouquet of ranunculuses at the reception desk, pretty tiles on the lobby floors, vintage Singer sewing machines and stylish Paris-related books. The staff was beyond friendly and we immediately felt like being received by family, and I'm not exaggerating :)

ABOUT

Larisa is a wedding and lifestyle photographer based in NYC, originally from Russia. This blog is a place of collected travels, personal throughs, projects and more.

Contact email: larisashorina@gmail.com

WEDDING PORTFOLIO

KIND WORDS

INSTAGRAM: LARISA_SHORINA

SIGN UP FOR BLOG UPDATES

+ BLOGLOVIN'

E-mail

Subscribe

Every room in the hotel is decorated in different colors. We got a chance to pick, and the blue one immediately became my favorite. It's very minimal, yet stylish and comfortable. The bathroom was a heaven, but I don't have any photos to share with you probably because after a long day I jumped straight to take a bath with all the Locitane products kindly provided in the room.:)

Thank you, dear Ch., from the bottom of my heart for making these two stays so great for us and helping to experience Paris from different angles! Xx

HOTEL FABRIC
31 rue de la Folie Méricourt
75011 Paris